The UNM Department of Student Publications supports students who participate in and learn from the opportunities offered in its publications: Daily Lobo, Conceptions Southwest and Best Student Essays. Each publication is created entirely by students with the target audience of the University of New Mexico students, faculty, staff and community.

Student Publications is governed by a Student Publications board, whose makeup up consists of 5 students—one selected from among the ASUNM Senate by the ASUNM vice president; two selected from among the undergraduate students by the ASUNM president; one member selected from among undergraduate students by the UNM student chapter of the Society of Professional Journalists and one person selected from among graduate students by the president of the Graduate and Professional Students Association; two faculty members appointed by the president of the Faculty Senate; one person selected from among the University staff and administration by the president of the University; and one journalist, otherwise unaffiliated with the University, who shall be appointed by the president of the New Mexico Press Association.

Started in 1895, the Daily Lobo is the University of New Mexico’s only recognized student newspaper. The Daily Lobo employs 60-75 students each year to produce the newspaper and support its operations. Students are involved in all aspects of producing a newspaper and its operations—delivery, accounting, advertising sales, design, layout, reporting, photography, videography and editing.

Conceptions Southwest is a student-produced annual art and literary magazine for the University of New Mexico. Conceptions Southwest has been publishing since 1978. A student editor recruits a volunteer staff of 15-20 students who seek submissions, select pieces for publication, and design the magazine for print.

In 1989, Student Publications introduced a non-fiction magazine for the university community—Best Student Essays. Best Student Essays is a student-produced bi-annual non-fiction magazine of essays written by students and nominated by professors. A student editor recruits a volunteer staff of 10-12 students who seek submissions, select pieces for publication, and design the magazines for print.

Mission

The department of Student Publications supports students who participate in and learn from the opportunities offered in its publications. The department provides the professional resources and environment to ensure an optimal learning experience for complementing formal classroom instruction. The primary objective is to build a broad base of student writers, editors, photographers, designers, and advertising professionals for the future.

Vision

To provide student-generated news, advertising and information for the University of New Mexico community while serving as a learning laboratory for the students served by Student Publications.
The Daily Lobo, Conceptions Southwest and Best Student Essays are the only publications of their kind on campus. Each publication is created entirely by students with the target audience of the University of New Mexico students, faculty, staff and community. Each publication provides a unique opportunity to work and/or be published. As the independent voice of UNM, the Daily Lobo strives to cover news and events taking place on campus and of interest to students. The Daily Lobo provides opportunities for student groups, campus departments, and local businesses to purchase advertising to market their programs and events. Student groups and campus departments are included in the calendar of events curated and published by the Daily Lobo in print, online and on our mobile app. Individual students are given free ads in several categories in the classified section of the Daily Lobo in print and online. Further, the Daily Lobo accepts and publishes letters from individuals within the university community, giving the community even more access to the student newspaper.

The role of the Daily Lobo is (1) to provide a learning environment where students can develop skills in all aspects of newspaper operations including journalism and advertising; (2). to give access to the UNM community to have information published in the newspaper through letters to the editor, calendar of events, advertising and news coverage; (3). to provide news, information, entertainment and forums for the dissemination of ideas to the university community. All editorial policy is determined by the editor-in-chief, who is a student. Content is published at the discretion of Daily Lobo editors, without prior review or consideration by administration.

The Daily Lobo publishes daily online, 75 print issues, and one advertising and information magazine per year. Conceptions Southwest publishes an annual magazine in the spring. Best Student Essays publishes two magazines per year, one in the fall and one in the spring.

Goals for 2018-19

1. In order to maintain the vision of the department in providing news to the UNM community, as well as developing student journalists, support from sources other than self-generated revenue will need to be explored. If the future is a digital one, Student Publications will need support from the university to be financial viable. Investigate opportunities for funding for student and professional staff. The Student Publications Board will investigate grant-writing— proposals to the UNM Foundation will help identify grants.

2. Continue cost reductions for the department. Reducing print publications from two days per week to one day per week will again be analyzed. Seek other expense reduction opportunities such as job sharing for our administrative staff.

3. Continue to focus on creating digital content and increasing social media presence for the Daily Lobo. Explore ways to monetize digital content and creative services. For example, with the addition of a multimedia team for the Daily Lobo, can those skills/personnel be used to create and videos to be sold for clients?

4. Collaborate with alumni to charter Alumni Constituency Chapter and start planning Daily Lobo’s 125th anniversary in 2020.

5. Apply for SFRB funding in 2018 for FY20. Having increased funding from student fees to support Student Publications will ensure student salaries and work toward eliminating incurred deficits.
