

Message from the VP

Dear Student Affairs Colleagues,

Today marks the beginning of Black History Month with the official raising of the Pan African Flag on UNM's campus. I hope you can join me at noon at the flagpole outside of Scholes Hall for this symbolic start to the events and recognitions to come. Earlier this week, faculty, staff, and students made the trek to Santa Fe to represent the University of New Mexico's outstanding contributions to our state through a commitment to student success, economic development, high-quality research, the creation of knowledge, and progress towards solving complex societal challenges. I was deeply impressed and excited to see the showing of Student Affairs staff alongside our student leaders demonstrating the ways that work related to student success serves all facets of the university and is a quality and meaningful investment in the future of our state. Both ASUNM and GPSA brought passionate and professional delegations, no doubt a reflection of their commitment to UNM and quality advising, while Student Affairs departments including American Indian Student Services, African American Student Services, El Centro de la Raza, LoboRespect, and Women's Resource Center each represented the distinct contributions of their units to our elected officials. It was incredible to see all of the representatives of UNM showing up as one and it was a true reflection of how our work synergistically works together to create a diverse and supportive environment for student learning. This weekend, the Leadershape Catalyst program will offer our student leaders yet another opportunity to dream big and create pathways to bring their visions for the future one step closer to reality. In that spirit, I do hope to see as many of you as possible at the division All-Staff Gathering on Friday, February 10th where we will explore exciting new opportunities in our division including upcoming events like UNM Big Give day!

With appreciation,
Eric

AASS AFRICAN AMERICAN STUDENT SERVICES

You're invited to join African American Student Services for their "When I say Black, I mean very colorful" celebration of Black History Month throughout February. The month is centered around the theme that Blackness is not a monolithic experience, but rather a celebration of culture and all of its hues.

All staff are invited to help kick off the celebration at the Flag Raising Ceremony on today, at the flagpole on the south side of Scholes Hall at noon.

Career Expo Returns to the SUB with Largest Number of Employers to Date

UNM Career Services is holding its annual Career Expo—traditionally their largest event of the year—and this year, the event is bringing in a record number of employers ready to hire Lobos for jobs and internships.

The Career Expo is scheduled for Thursday, Feb. 9, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the UNM Student Union Ballrooms. This year marks the return of the in-person format which was paused during the pandemic. As of today, the fair is at the maximum capacity with 125 employers signed up.

“We haven’t held this event in person since 2020,” says Dr. Jenna Crabb, UNM Career Services director. “This is the largest number of employers we’ve had since 2008 when we had 122, and we currently are full and have a waiting list of employers who want to participate.” Students can preview which employers are going to there and RSVP for the event here. UNM hosted this program 10 years ago and received some very positive feedback from our student participants. We would appreciate your targeted and general promotion of this event. A flyer is attached to pass on and display.

There are 120 spots to be filled on a first-come first-serve basis and we would like to have representation from as many areas on campus as possible.
